President’s Message

I went to Horse Expo in Pomona on the last weekend in January. This year had less people in attendance, though we still had activity at the booth.

I would like to thank the ladies that volunteered their time to be in the booth. Ingrid LeMaster, Helen Johnson, Linda Smerber, Lisa Sura, Robin Chaney, Carol Grey, Carolyn Hendrickson, Julie Neely, Audra Homitz, and our Jr. Miss CSHA Marie Homitz.

Special thanks to Ingrid LeMaster for handling the site set up, scheduling and vendor passes. I would like to thank Carol Grey who was in the booth on Sunday and handled breaking down our booth.

We are all now gearing up all of our programs for another great year of activity. Remember all of these programs benefit either you directly or your family, so please assist those that are making events and shows successful.

James Hendrickson
CSHA President.

CDFA — EHV-1 News

Information below has been posted to CDFA’s EHV-1 Webpage http://www.cdfa.ca.gov/ahfss/animal_health/equine_herpes_virus.html . We appreciate your assistance in distributing this information to the equine industry.

February 11, 2015: A fourteen year old Quarter Horse gelding in Monterey County, has been confirmed positive for the non-neuropathogenic strain of Equine Herpesvirus -1. This strain of virus is responsible for the more common rhinopneumonitis cases. A small percentage of the non-neuropathogenic EHV-1 infected horses can display neurologic signs compatible with equine herpes myeloencephalopathy(EHM). The positive horse has been quarantined and isolated under veterinary care. Owners of exposed horses are monitoring for clinical signs and taking temperatures twice daily. CDFA will continue to monitor the situation.
Royalty

Mary Homicz Junior Miss CSHA for 2015 had a great time traveling all the way from Weaverville Ca to Pomona Ca to promote CSHA at the Western State Horse Expo Jan 31st 2015.

Mary spent time in the CSHA booth and also walking the trade show talking to different vendors. Several vendors where approached successfully about making donations or becoming sponsors of CSHA State Endurance Program. Mary spent a lot of time looking over Breyer in the vendor store across from the CSHA booth to!

The weekend before the Expo, Mary attended the CSHA January Quarterly Meeting in Santa Nella participating in the opening meeting, the royalty meeting, the endurance meeting and part of the general session before having to head home on the long drive back north.

Parade

Many thanks to the twelve of you who traveled to the CSHA Quarterly meeting in Santa Nella January 24th. The attendees included longtime parader Jeannie Mills and judges Freddie Miller, Paulette Webb, and Alice Lawellin. The Alameda Sheriff’s Posse was represented by four ladies that also participated in the Parade Symposium that followed the meeting. Our 2015 budget was approved at the CSHA Finance Committee the evening of the 23rd. We began our Saturday meeting with a moment of silence for judge Neal Russell, who passed away recently.

Jill Kraut, Drill Team Program Chair, gave a presentation on our raffle ticket sale which began that day and will conclude April 1, 2015. Your Parade Program will earn $1.00 for each $2.00 tickets that are sold.

Please let me know how many tickets you can sell and I will gladly mail them to you.

Alice Lawellin, Cathy Smith, and myself attended a planning meeting January 20th (yes, it was foggy) in Riverbank with the Mid Valley Unit of The Backcountry Horsemen. They are preparing to apply for participation in the 2016 Tournament of Roses Parade. They have some very good ideas and we wish them the best of luck in their endeavor.

Hopefully you sent in your nomination forms for the two perpetual awards that will be presented at the State Championship Banquet. Also, the Parader’s Grant Application form is on the website and in this newsletter and is due to the State Office August 30, 2015. This grant was established by Peggy and Harry Narducci to benefit any organization that provides an equine experience to handicapped persons.

State Championship Parade and Awards Banquet will be held in Chowchilla on May 16, 2015. Information packets will be sent out to paraders in late March. Now is the time to obtain those important items for the raffle at the banquet. Sponsorships may be in any amount large or small and are deeply appreciated by all of our members. Your continued support keeps the Parade Program alive and well.

Sincerely,
Candy Graham

Clop clop clop...Clappety clop...Clop. The sharp, hollow sound of horse hooves on pavement startles a man at a gas station at a busy intersection in the Anaheim Resort district. He looks up and sees two Garden Grove Police officers in black jeans, black boots and black cowboy hats gazing at him — their eyes about nine feet off the ground. “You usually never see horses roaming around here,” says Yahir Diaz, who asks the officers if he can take their picture. They comply.

As two of the most photographed cops in Orange County, Officer Taylor Macy and Master Reserve Officer Rick Wagner are used to the attention. The Garden Grove PD recently assigned the officers, who are members of the agency’s Mounted Enforcement Unit, to patrol a stretch of Harbor Boulevard whose hotels were jammed when the world’s largest trade-only event for the music products industry blew into town.

Their eyes about nine feet off the ground, Wagner and Macy can spot trouble before their colleagues on foot or in patrol cars can. “Nobody pets a motorcycle,” notes recently retired Garden Grove PD Sgt. Rick Wagner, 51, now a master reserve officer and member of the Mounted Enforcement Unit. Wagner’s horse, Joaquin, is an 11-year-old Mustang who was captured in the mountains of Oregon. Wagner is straight out of central casting, with a sun-kissed face and bushy moustache. He looks every inch the steer wrestler he used to be. Macy, 27, who grew up in Nevada around horses, also looks like he could comfortably belly up to any bar in a Wild West saloon.

Master Reserve Officer Rick Wagner of the Garden Grove PD used to wrestle steers. Macy’s quarter horse, a rescue, is Rooster Cogburn, named after the “True Grit” character made famous by John Wayne. Macy’s girlfriend is a deputy on the Mounted Enforcement Unit of the Ventura County Sheriff’s Department.

While members of the public love to snap pictures of the officers on their horses, and while the officers say being on the Mounted Enforcement Unit is a nice break from regular patrol, the unit is hardly just for show. Having cops on horses is a “high-visibility deterrent,” says Sgt. Jim Holder, a former bareback bronco rider on the National Police Rodeo Association circuit who manages the Garden Grove PD’s Mounted Enforcement Unit of two full-time and two part-time officers. The unit, which is activated for NAMM and special events like the Garden Grove Strawberry Festival, routinely busts people for prostitution, drug offenses, robberies, assaults and drunk driving. The officers are trained to use both arms to restrain a suspect while remaining in the saddle. “We’ve arrested people who walked up to pet our horses who were either intoxicated or who we found had drugs on them,” Macy says. Wagner and Macy, whose crossed-saber pins on their police shirts signify them as members of the Mounted Enforcement Unit, recall chasing down a robbery suspect in broad daylight in the middle of a crowded street, their horses galloping about 20 miles per hour.

Launched in 2000, the Garden Grove PD’s Mounted Enforcement Unit is one of seven in Orange County. The Orange County Sheriff’s Department has had one for years, along with police agencies in Santa Ana, Anaheim, Newport Beach, Buena Park and Huntington Beach. About 50 horses make up this regional mounted unit, which trains together monthly at a ranch in Norco. Wagner and Macy trot down Harbor Boulevard in Garden Grove during the massive NAMM expo at the nearby Anaheim Convention Center.

The horses belong to the officers who ride them — only the equipment they carry on the horses (guns, handcuffs, etc.) belongs to the police agencies. During a break on a patch of grass outside an Outback Steakhouse, Wagner begins whistling. His horse, recognizing the command, relieves himself. All “police horses” are trained to go to the bathroom on command and never eat while on duty. “They know when it’s game time,” Macy says of the horses when police work kicks into high gear.

All equine members of the Garden Grove PD’s Mounted Enforcement Unit have to undergo rigorous training, such as being exposed to gunshots, fireworks and crowds so they won’t spook if chaos erupts. The 1,000-pound horses are used as weapons to control crowds or suspects.

A woman holding a smart phone slowly approaches Joaquin. “You won’t arrest me if I take your picture, will you?” she asks Wagner. Of course not, he tells her. She snaps away. Macy and Wagner worked 2 to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday when NAMM was in town. “We’ll be happy to make two to three arrests during these two days,” Wagner says. On their Friday shift, the officers arrested a suspect for possession of heroin and interviewed two suspicious people in a parking lot, but did not arrest them. Saturday was quieter, with no arrests.

Snap! Click! Snap! Several more pedestrians take photos of the officers while waiting to cross an intersection. How fast can the horses go, someone asks. “One horsepower,” Wagner quips.

Wagner and Macy cross a street while one of their colleagues in patrol happens upon a red light.

Drill Team

If you made it to the Horse Expo in Pomona I hope you had a chance to see one of the performances by the CSHA California Cowgirls Drill Team. They welcomed the crowds in the morning with a “meet & greet” and finished up with performances during the evening presentations. We appreciate all the effort, time and money they put into traveling promoting our sport with their special form of cowgirl class.

At the January Quarterly meeting we kicked off the “2015 Spring Raffle”. The raffle is a fundraiser put on by the drill team program to assist CSHA teams raise money for the upcoming season. We have also invited other CSHA programs to participate in the raffle to raise funds for their own programs. The Royalty Program is once again joining in and they have been very successful in ticket sales. This year we welcome the Parade Program into our fundraiser. Tickets are currently being sold for $2.00 each through April 1st, 2015 please contact a member of Royalty, Parade or one of our participating drill teams to purchase tickets. Prizes include a 50” T.V., a family four pack of park hopper tickets to Disney resort, or a $300 gas or Apple gift card. The winning tickets will be drawn at the State Drill Team Championships on May 2-3, 2015 at the Diamond Bar Arena in Ceres.

The State Championships is going to be a popular event this year with a record number of teams indicating they are planning on attending. State Champion titles will be given out in Junior, Mixed, Senior, and Quad divisions as well as one overall Grand Champion title. Compulsory, Novice and the popular and fun Themed division will round out the open divisions. Please come join us at the Diamond Bar the first weekend of May.

Plans are underway for the California Cup which will be held the first weekend of August at Horse Park at Woodside again.

GET THE TRAILER HOOKED UP! WE’RE GOING TO THE PARADE!
Submitted by: Paulette Webb

WHOA! If what you’re thinking is to go to a parade, let’s take a step back. Parading is one sport where jumping in feet first can develop into a fast case of discouragement. You need to do some research. You need to do some homework (or rather work at home). Then you can go to the parade.

Read the current CSHA Parade Rules...in its entirety. There classes to fit just about everyone’s interests, creativity levels and wallet. But there are rules and it will be your responsibility to know them and to recognize and live with the consequences if you do not follow them.

Observe. I recommend to attend a few parades as a spectator, either with another parader. Watch and observe (and help) what it takes that parader to get ready at the parade. Watch what goes on during pre-judging. Better yet, ask a CSHA judge to let you clerk for her. You’ll really get an eyeeful and be able to talk to a “walking rule book” while you’re at it.

Discuss the whole idea with your horse. Well, not really. However, you do have to have some real hard conversations with yourself in order to determine your horse’s “paradability”. With a few exceptions, the “dancing, prancing” horse you see on the parade route is an animal in fear for its life and entering full flight mode. A parade can be a frightening place to even the most trail broke horse in the barn. You need to measure what I call your horse’s flight instinct. Being scared, being nervous is okay provided your horse trusts you enough to stick around rather than set a new speed record for returning to the trailer. Work with your horse on trailering, especially loading in the dark. Once a horse gets high from a trailer fight and your nerves are frayed, it’s downhill from there. Take your horse to a de-sensitizing clinic. At the very least, put up balloons throughout your horse’s home environment, set up a radio in the barn and where you ride or ground work you horse. Whether your horse is a newbie on the street or one who has to be woken up to join the parade, you must be constantly vigilant and aware of your surroundings in order to “protect” your horse...yourself...and others.

Sadly, no matter what you do, some horses just are not going to fit the mold. My first horse was parade proof at birth. My second horse became a nervous wreck trying to figure out what was beneath all the tapestry and tassels on an Arabian Costume rider and don’t even bring up that monstrosity that was tumbling behind that cute Paint pony (a cart). She refused to calm down until I took her over to the horse show practice arena...that was normal for her. The horse I have now? Nothing would have helped this horse to become a parade horse, I didn’t even try. What do you do? Work with your horse and then make an informed decision.

Okay, so your horse is good to go. You have equipment. Let’s load up you say! Not so fast. Let’s clean first. The one common denominator in all classes is “general appearance and cleanliness”. Judging can become so tight that pieces of stray hair or lint can be the deciding factor.

- If your horse is wearing it/pulling it, clean it. Then polish it. Before parade day.
- If you are wearing it, clean it before parade day.
- If it is white, don’t handle with bare hands. Ever.
- If you are going to ride it or drive it, wash it/clip it. Before parade day.
- With all of the above, assume that something will go wrong and be prepared to clean and polish at the parade.

Perform. Bands and drill teams perform, I just ride my horse down the street. WRONG! You’re not going to do a few roll backs at the review stand or rope the judge. But think of it as “working the crowd”. Wave. Smile. Circle your horse. Side pass a time or two. “Weave” to the left or right to engage the crowd and give them a good view of your outfit. That’s “performing” for those of us who don’t have gaited horses. And if you are in a mounted group or color guard, ensure that your flags are flying free, your lines are straight and your spacing is even. And now you have reached the judging stand.

- Acknowledge your judge whether it is a formal military style salute or one that goes more with your class or attire.
- Do something...anything...as long as it is in keeping with your class and it is safe.
- Working Western/Fancy Dressed Western/Plain Western/Junior Equestrian – circle your horse, turn in and back or side pass, etc.
- Vehicle class – circle, figure 8 or stop and back, etc.
- Color Guard – wheel in, dip flags and wheel out, simply dip flags or a head salute.

Be alert – always. Your horse is a saint and wouldn’t even swish a fly. But what is he going to do when the 2 year old escapes his mother and runs into the street to yank on his tail? What is he going to do when someone decides it is the Fourth of July, in April? Be calm. Be on the alert for potential situations and take steps to defuse them before they get out of hand. Some times that means making a request of the other person; calling someone in to help; or just getting out of the area.

Got all the dire warnings down? Here’s the last thing....HAVE FUN. Be careful, be competitive, be the best you can be but always remember that above all else, a parade is a fun place to be.

The above information was drawn from the CSHA Parade Manual, a booklet published and distributed by the CSHA State Parade Committee in the early 1980s.
